

April W. Case has more than 12 years experience in environmental health and safety and hazardous waste management both in public and private sectors. She has a B.S. in Environmental Science and an M.S. in Environmental Health. She is a CHMM, and has an ASP certification and is working on her CSP certification. She is also a certified Lead Inspector for the State of Tennessee.

She began her career at Clean Harbors Environmental (formally Laidlaw Environmental) at a hazardous waste TSDf for six years, and worked as a contractor for various projects at US DOE in Oak Ridge, managing hazardous materials and working in environmental compliance. She presently works at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville as the Sr. Environmental Coordinator for the Environmental Health and Safety Department, where she has been employed almost three years. Her main focus on campus is hazardous materials and waste management, but she also assists in other areas of environmental compliance on campus.

April resides in Knoxville, TN with her husband, Jason and her son Tyler.
